Thanks Dean, I agree 110%.

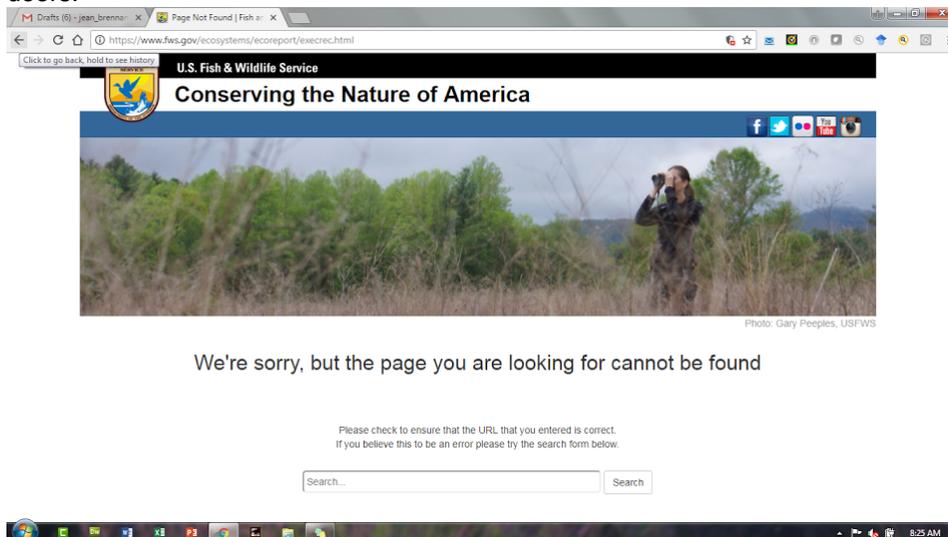

For my effort I'm going to pursue this "Coordinators' Lessons Learned" from the implementing agent (landscape conservation practitioner) perspective. Obviously the FWS-context played an important part of what is, what was, and sadly what could have been. So my focus is less about informing the Service as it is in documenting our contributions to this evolving conservation approach and paradigm. I believe our target audience is outside the Service, thus not dependent on them adopting a truly adaptive management approach. Rather I believe that the Service will be part of the larger 'wave' vs. the leaders sadly, at least in the near-term.

I really appreciate you sharing all these papers and sharing your 'institutional memory' as a valuable foundation to help frame all this. I'll probably post (on an 'internal' portion of our website) these materials to share with others on this scoping team. Would that be OK? [At this point I don't want to overwhelm folks as this 'project' is just one more thing we're taking on while still trying to wrap-up OSA-LCC work.]

know your tenure is not long with the LCCs but would most certainly welcome your continued review and involvement. At the moment I'm just on a 'scoping' exercise to frame the effort, questions,.....and as this exchange demonstrates, to also identify the audience. So let me know if you'd like to be included on the team or email list going forward. For now, we have a call scheduled for Mon at 2-3 Eastern. Call-in 1-866-832-8172 Access code: 495 184 7 Let me know and I can add you to the "REMINDER" email I'll send out that day.

*Side note: let me know if you'd ever like to circle back to the whole LCD(2) which we call "NatureScape" and our LanDAT tool suite. I know that probably seems like a life time ago :)

*Side-side note: I can't access any of the links from that Assessment -- It's apparently 'hidden' behind internal closed doors.
