THE TYPES OF UNIONACEA (MOLLUSCA: BIVALVIA) IN THE ACADEMY OF NATURAL SCIENCES OF PHILADELPHIA¹

RICHARD I. JOHNSON² AND H. BURRINGTON BAKER³

ABSTRACT.—Included in this paper are references not only to over 500 unionid types which were located, but to others mentioned in the literature which indicated they should be in the Academy. The location of the holotype is included, when known, with each reference, even if it is not in the Academy. All of the unionid taxa introduced by T. A. Conrad are included even if the types are not in the Academy and references are included to all specimens mentioned by I. Lea as in the Academy, the M. Burrough or C. M. Wheatley collns., even if they could not be located. References to all of C. S. Rafinesque's known types are included and almost 50 are illustrated for the first time; some are selected as lectotypes, others as neotypes. All of the unionids described by S. S. Haldeman are illustrated for the first time. None of T. Say's types were located, so that only references to subsequently selected neotypes are mentioned. The paper also includes types from the following additional authors: Anthony, Athearn, F. Baker, H. B. Baker, Bartsch, Call, Cragin, Currier, Dall, Daniels, Frierson, Fuller, Grier, Guppy, Hemphill, Ihering, R. I. Johnson, Marsh, Marshall, Miles, Olsson and Wurtz, Ortmann, Ortmann and Walker, Pilsbry, Pilsbry and Bequaert, B. H. and S. H. Wright, and Wurtz.

INTRODUCTION

This is the fourth study of the molluscan types in the Academy. The first three by Baker (1962, 1963, 1964) covered land and fresh water gastropods.

The more important authors of the unionid taxa associated with the Academy are Conrad, Lea, Rafinesque, and Say, but the collection also includes types from Anthony, Athearn, F. Baker, H. B. Baker, Bartsch, Call, Cragin, Currier, Dall, Daniels, Frierson, Fuller, Grier, Guppy, Haldeman, Hemphill, Ihering, R. I. Johnson, Marsh, Marshall, Miles, Olsson and Wurtz, Ortmann, Ortmann and Walker, Pilsbry, Pilsbry and Bequaert, B. H. and S. H. Wright, and Wurtz.

SOME OF THE ASSEMBLAGES OF TYPES

Anthony, J. G.—His collection is in the Museum of Comparative Zoology. The types were studied by Turner (1946) who listed all of the taxa he introduced and located all of his figured holotypes of Unionidae. Paratypes of many of Anthony's species are in the Academy, and only references to these are included here.

Conrad, T. A.—The disposition of Conrad's collection is unknown, but so many of his unionid types are in the Academy, that all of his unionid taxa, recent and fossil, are included in this list, as well as the location of all of his known unionid types. A complete bibliography of his works is available in the biography by Wheeler (1935).

Frierson, L. S.—His collection was purchased by B. Walker, and is in the Museum of Zoology, University of Michigan. Johnson (1972) studied all of the Frierson types which are extant. They are to be found in a number of institutions. Included here are only those holotypes, lectotypes, paratypes, and paralectotypes which are in the Academy.

Guppy, H. L.—Since his one introduced unionid species was not figured, and was not found in the British Museum (Natural History) by Johnson (1971), the syntype in the Academy is selected as a lectotype in this paper.

Haldeman, S. S.—All of his unionid types, previously unfigured, are in the Academy and are now figured.

Lea, Isaac.—Although Lea published the larger part of his work in the papers of the Academy, he left his extensive collection to the United States National Museum. Nevertheless, a number of his figured types are in the Academy, especially those described early in his career, many collected by Dr. Marmaduke Burrough. Later, Lea described specimens received from C. M. Wheatley, whose pertinent collections are in the Academy (Johnson; 1956). All of Lea's references to types in the Academy or the Wheatley collections are included here even if they could not be found.

Scudder (1885) compiled an elaborate bibliography of the published works of Lea. His list of species includes all of the recent unionid taxa introduced by Lea; he did not include the fossil taxa which are included here since the types of all of them are in the Academy. Lea dated his taxa, especially those published in his earlier works, from the day they were read before a learned society, usually the American Philosophical Society. Simpson (1900) correctly dated them from their actual date of publication. Baker carefully reviewed the dates of Lea's publications for the present work, and a few minor changes have been made, but these are mostly of bibliographic interest, and do not involve problems of priority.

Pilsbry, H. A. and J. C. Bequaert. — The types of most of the Unionacea they described from the former Belgian Congo are in the Academy or in the American Museum of Natural History; the latter were located by Richards and Old (1969).

Rafinesque, C. S. — Rafinesque (1831: 1) wrote of the disposition of some of his unionids. At the time of his writing he still had specimens of 60 of the species described in his Monograph, and was selling C. A. Poulson upwards of 50 of them. These are now in the Academy, as well as several of his specimens that were acquired by S. S. Haldeman. A few additional Rafinesque types that were sent to Féruccac are now in the Muséum national d'histoire naturelle, Paris. References to all known Rafinesque types are included here. A reprint of his work on mollusca was effected by Binney and Tryon (1864) and the index makes readily available those taxa not mentioned here. Rafinesque's paper on the Unionidae of the Ohio River (1820) was translated from the French by Poulson (1832) and again by LaRocque (1964). Rafinesque's types have been treated as special cases. It has been argued that the measurements of the types in the Poulson collection do not always correspond with those given in the monograph, or that Rafinesque was crazy and not to be taken seriously. Vanatta (1915) noted that these shells have Rafinesque's original labels with ink numbers on the specimens corresponding to Rafinesque's monograph of 1820.

Many of these specimens are at least syntypes, and are figured here; some are selected as lectotypes; others which are obviously subsequent identifications are chosen as neotypes if they agree with the original descriptions.

These selections are in keeping with modern procedure. Stansbery (pers. comm.) says, "Walker and Ortmann (1922) did a fine job for their time and in consideration of their basic premise that the validity of a name depends upon its identifiability from the original description. I consider the identification of the holotype (if extant) to be the court of last appeal in such matters. If we didn't most of Lamarck's names would now become nomina dubia." Johnson (1969), who figured those of Lamarck's North American unionids which were previously unfigured, agrees with Stansbery, and also with Morrison (1969) who appears to accept the same point of view except that the latter asserts the validity of many of Rafinesque's names without affording the public palpable argument.

Say, T. — While the Academy is the logical place to turn for the unionid types of Say, there are none there, in spite of the statement of Mrs. Say (Say, T. 1840: 3), "If any specimens of species here described are not contained in the Cabinet of the Academy of Natural Sciences, they will probably be found in my own private collection, which has not been opened since it was put up five years since. If this should be the case, it will afford me much pleasure to place them in that collection for future reference." [This collection appears to have been lost].

As Binney (1858) reprinted all of his work on recent conchology, and the unionid references are easily available in the index, the only references to Say in this list are to neotypes selected by Haas and by Johnson.

Wright, B. H. and S. H. — Their collection is in the United States National Museum, as are most of the figured types, although a few of them are in the Academy. Johnson (1967) studied all the Wright types and selected lectotypes when required. Included here are only those Wright types in the Academy.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Some years ago, H. B. Baker submitted to me a manuscript on the supposed unionid types in the Academy. I revised the manuscript extensively. Unfortunately ill health and death prevented Dr. Baker from completing it. I have since rewritten the manuscript, and added photographs of many of the previously unfigured types. My primary thanks are to H. B. Baker who did so much of the initial work, and it is with pleasure that I combine our names in authorship.

I am also pleased to thank Drs. George M. Davis and Robert Robertson of the Academy for their cooperation in every way in the preparation of this paper. Dr. Joseph Rosewater, of the United States National Museum kindly made available a number of disputed types. Thanks are also extended to Dr. R. Tucker Abbott, of the Delaware Museum of Natural History, for relevant data.

The study was generously supported by the American Philosophical Society and subsequently by the W. F. Milton Fund, Harvard University.

A LIST OF THE TYPES OF UNIONACEA IN THE ACADEMY OF NATURAL SCIENCES OF PHILADELPHIA WITH THEIR ORIGINAL REFERENCES AND TYPE LOCALITIES.

The following list is arranged alphabetically by species, giving the author, year and place of publication of the original description, the type locality and collector or collection when relevant, and includes references to those types, with the exception of those of Say, which are believed to have been in the museum but are now lost. Since none of Say's types were located, references are given only to subsequently selected neotypes. All of Conrad's unionid taxa are included, and all those of Lea which mentioned Burrough, Wheatley, or the Academy specifically.

The location of the holotype is given when known, even if it is not in the Academy. If the location of the holotype is unknown, types are listed as syntypes or paratypes, generally the latter if the species was originally figured and there seems to be a possibility that that specimen may be extant, even though this term was unknown to earlier authors. Obviously the use of either syntype or paratype is arbitrary when the location of the holotype is not definitely known.

Isaac Lea often rushed brief Latin descriptions of his new species into print, a practice common in his time. These were subsequently followed by adequate descriptions and figures, which were then reprinted as Observations on the Genus Unio. Only page references to this work are included here since the plates and figures were not renumbered. Lea often gave several localities where each of his species had been found and did not select types, though he always figured a single specimen for which he gave measurements. In lieu of the word 'type' under Article 73 (b) Int. Code Zool. Nomen. (1964), this is an "equivalent expression" and these specimens are regarded as holotypes.

All locality data, contained in brackets, are additions to already published records and are from original labels or modern atlases. The plates contain measurements of the specimens figured which are not repeated elsewhere.

The type mentioned by Vanatta, 1915, PANSP 67: 550, is here selected lectotype ANSP 20226 from the Kentucky River. Ortmann and Walker (1922: 68) point out that this species is unidentifiable from the original description and might be Pleurobema pyramidatum (Lea) 1834 or Dysnomia sulcata (Lea) 1829. Friesen (1927: 52), Haas (1969: 297) and Morrison (1969: 24) equate obliquata with pyramidatum, though the type is sulcata.

The type mentioned by Vanatta, 1915, PANSP 67: 558, is here selected lectotype ANSP 20244 from the Ohio River. Ortmann and Walker (1922: 4) point out that while the type has been identified as Fusconaia ebenus (Lea) 1831, obovalis can not be recognized from the original description, and hence they regard ebenus as valid.
- obsoletus* F. Baker, Diplodon: 1914, PANSP 65: 666, pl. 22, fig. 17 (Rio Jamauchim, Lat. 5°30' S, Long. 54°15' W, Brazil). Lectotype, here selected, ANSP 109327a, fig. 17; paralectotype ANSP 109327 right valve of fig. 16.

- ohiensis* Rafinesque, Anodonta: 1820, Annales Générales des Sciences Physiques, Bruxelles 5: 316, no. 58 (Ohio [River]). ANSP 216908 is labeled, "Unio ohiensis Raf. Ohio River" to which has been added, "Ex Univ. of Penna. coll." The old calligraphy appears somewhat similar to that of one of Rafinesque's labels in the Pousson collection, however the number 30 in the shell, if it referred to Rafinesque's monograph, would make it Qbliquaria metanevra. There is really no evidence that this specimen is a type.
